Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 29 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Wet and windy at times.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers mostly dying out, then turning chilly for many under clearing skies. Clouding over in the west with rain moving east across Northern Ireland, Scotland, Wales and northern England, heavy in places with coastal gales developing.

Thursday:
Outbreaks of rain affecting many areas, though southeast England probably staying dry. Some bright spells possible, mainly east of hills. A little warmer than on Wednesday despite being windy.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Remaining unsettled with showers or periods of rain, heavy at times, affecting all areas. Some drier, brighter interludes are expected. Generally windy with coastal gales at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.